

Nurses Medication Errors An Interpretative Study Of Experiences Short Reviews

Download PDF File

Nurses Medication Errors An Interpretative

For a nurse who makes a medication error, consequences may include disciplinary action by the state board of nursing, job dismissal, mental anguish, and possible civil or criminal charges. In one study of fatal medication errors made by healthcare providers, the providers reported they felt immobilized, nervous, fearful, guilty, and anxious.

Medication errors: Best Practices - American Nurse Today

Using discourse analysis within a framework of an interpretive research design, the phenomenon of a not too uncommon occurrence in nursing practice was examined. Insight into nurses' involvement with medication errors was gained from interviews, group discussions and self-reports.

Nurses' medication errors - Amdt - 1994 - Journal of ...

Nurses' medication errors. Using discourse analysis within a framework of an interpretive research design, the phenomenon of a not too uncommon occurrence in nursing practice was examined. Insight into nurses' involvement with medication errors was gained from interviews, group discussions and self-reports.

Nurses' medication errors - ResearchGate

Contents: Drug routine - Medication errors - Procedure of dealing with medication errors - German and British perspectives of nursing - Caring for others - Caring for self, teaching of ethics in nursing education and practice - Phenomenology as a basis for qualitative research - Discourse analysis - Subjection and Power - Identification and Change - Guilt and Shame: Reconciliation with Human Precariousness - Learning from Mistakes - Teaching Ethics in Nursing Education.

Nurses' medication errors : an interpretative study of ...

The nurse can then retrieve the medication, scan the patient's armband and determine that it is the correct patient and then scan the medication to insure that it is the correct dose, then administer the medication to the patient followed by timely documentation of the process in the electronic health record (Gann, 2015).

Factors Influencing Nurse Medication Errors - RN Journal

Medication Errors in Nurses. Research has revealed that nurses spend 40% of their time administering drugs. Accurate medication administration is an important aspect in patient safety. There is urgent need to improve the medication administration process and nurses and other medical practitioners have a responsibility of being extra vigilant to ensure that errors are reduced.

Medication Errors in Nurses Essay | Medicine and Health ...

Medication errors are preventable, and nurses are in an optimal position to make a difference. The right tools and support enable nurses to better identify potential reconciliation issues, helping prevent errors and improve overall quality of medication therapy for patients.

Download Ebook Nurses Medication Errors An Interpretative Study Of Experiences

Addressing the challenge of medication errors | The ...

Types of Medication Errors. Medication errors can occur anywhere along the route, from the clinician who prescribes the medication to the healthcare professional who administers the medication. The different types of medication errors include (but are not necessarily limited to): Prescribing errors, wherein the selection of a drug is incorrect based on the patient's allergies or other indications. Additionally, the wrong dose, form, quantity, route (oral vs intravenous), concentration, or ...

Medication Errors in Nursing: Common Types, Causes, and ...

Similar to other studies, no single or combination of nurse demographic characteristics were strongly associated with nurse perceptions of medication errors or the reporting of medication errors. Thus, all nurses in an organization may need help in identifying what is a medication error, when to report it, and to whom.

Nurse Perceptions of Medication Errors: What We Need to ...

Medication errors had been made by 64.55% of the nurses. In addition, 31.37% of the participants reported medication errors on the verge of occurrence. The most common types of reported errors were wrong dosage and infusion rate. The most common causes were using abbreviations instead of full names of drugs and similar names of drugs.

Types and causes of medication errors from nurse's viewpoint causes of medication errors, parameters of medication errors, and the impact of nursing environments and medication errors, were included. A total of nine articles from the years 2002-2007 found during the CINAHL and Medline searches were summarized in a matrix for organized review. Synthesis of Findings Common themes have been Nurses' Perceptions of the Causes of Medication Errors: An ...

Nowadays, medication errors are looked at as system failures rather than nursing misbehavior. If this had been treated as an opportunity for improvement instead of an opportunity to shame and punish, Dr. G. would have been held accountable for his (apparent) habit of tossing out verbal orders (and then changing them without notice when he entered them into the chart), and the nurse would have ...

I Was Suspended - nursecode.com

Nurses' medication errors Nurses' medication errors Amdt, Marianne 1994-03-01 00:00:00 This paper reports on a qualitative study of nurses' experiences with medication errors. Using discourse analysis within a framework of an interpretive research design, the phenomenon of a not too uncommon occurrence in nursing practice was examined.

Nurses' medication errors, Journal of Advanced Nursing ...

As nurses, we are often the last "gatekeeper" in the administration process to prevent medication errors. It is important to take the time needed to ensure patient safety, and to minimize distractions throughout the process. Here are strategies on how to prevent medication errors in nursing: • The rights of medication administration ...

The Nurse's Role in Medication Error Prevention - rn.com

For new nurses, the most common cause of errors with medication is a lack of 'presence of mind', as well as nerves and pressure. Studies have shown that administration errors can account for anywhere up to 32% of medication errors. The best way to ensure that you avoid medication errors, is to leave your personal life behind at the door to ...

Download Ebook Nurses Medication Errors An Interpretative Study Of Experiences